Greetings!

School kitchen gardens improving

One of the principles of Project Mala is that every child will carry away some benefit from their time with us. Not all children are academic or good at sports, so we offer a number of practical life skills training which will be useful for them in their home life. One of these skills is gardening. As we are in a rural area most families will have some land to grow vegetables and we use some of what we grow in our school meals.

Most children enjoy the gardening lessons and take pride in the school kitchen garden

These gourds are grown in Mujehra school and are almost too big for Riya, one of the girls in our pre-school, to lift

Bananas are grown in abundance at most of our schools
